Britain Loses Fourth Plane Carrier In War

HERMES STRUCK BY JAP TORPEDO SHOT FROM AIR

London Shocked By News Day After Announcement Of Cruiser Sinkings

DISSATISFACTION IS NOTED

Admiralty Says Four More Axis Ships Sent Down In Mediterranean

LONDON, April 10 — In the face of mounting criticism over Great Britain's naval strategy, the British admiralty today announced that the aircraft carrier Hermes has been sunk by Japanese torpedo planes in the wake of the loss of the cruisers Dorsetshire and Cornwall.

The Hermes, an old-timer of 10,850 tons, was the first vessel ever designed and built by the admiralty as an aircraft carrier. She was launched in 1919.

News that the Hermes had followed three other British aircraft carriers—the Courageous, the Ark Royal and the Glorious—beneath the waves came as a shock to Britain.

The country had far from recovered from the loss of the Dorsetshire and Cornwall and newspapers carrying "stop press" news of the latest disaster were bristling with editorials criticizing the strategy that has enabled so many valuable if not irreplaceable ships to be sunk thus far.

Another admiralty announcement that British submarines had accounted for four more axis ships in the Mediterranean did nothing to lessen the feeling of chagrin.

"Grievous Blow"

The London Times termed the loss of the Dorsetshire and Cornwall a "grievous blow" and all newspapers recalled with regret that the former vessel was the one which administered the coup de grace to the giant German battleship Bismarck in a North Sea battle a little less than a year ago.

An article by the naval correspondent of the London Daily Mail was outstanding in its bluntness. "One thing is clear to any student of naval war," this authority said.

"We have reached a point at which an error of strategic judgment in the higher direction of the war might prove fatal in the not distant future.

"We must hope and pray that no further errors of judgment occur in the supreme direction of our naval strategy."

This dispatch was sent from an enemy country, whose motive in releasing news is likely to be propaganda. Axis claims should be credited only when confirmed by American or Allied sources.

BISHOP, OTHERS OPPOSING NAZI DECREE JAILED

STOCKHOLM, April 10—Bishop Berggrav of Oslo and three other Norwegian clergymen were arrested today as an aftermath of the church rebellion against the Quisling regime in Norway, according to reports received in Stockholm.

The four men were lodged in a concentration camp near Oslo. They were the first churchmen arrested by Quisling.

Bishop Berggrav was known as a "symbol" of the Norwegian church's resistance to Puppet Premier Major Vidkun Quisling and German domination.

He and the three other clergymen were accused of being the authors of a declaration read from all pulpits in Norway yesterday affirming the determination of all to "obey God instead of Quisling."

River Continues To Rise After Two Days Of Rain; Route 762 Menaced

SOME CROPLAND COVERED

Stream Shows Climb Of Over Four Inches Each Hour, Weatherman Reports

Swollen by almost two days of rain, the Scioto river poured out into the lowlands Friday covering an undetermined amount of cropland and threatening to inundate at least one state route in the county.

State highway officials said Friday that Route 762 between the Mackey Ford bridge and Route 23 probably would be under water before night if the river continued to rise at its present rate. The water was rising Friday at the rate of about 4½ inches an hour, according to Ervin Leist, Circleville's weather observer.

Only other state route which might possibly be endangered by the water would be Route 104, and the water still was considerably below the lowest places, according to the highway department.

River stage reached its flood level of fourteen feet Friday about noon.

County officials also were watching the rising waters, but said that none of the county roads was yet endangered. The canal road southwest of the city is the first county road to be inundated.

Agricultural experts were unable to estimate the amount of cropland which was covered with water, but they expect little water damage to crops. Water will not harm wheat unless the plants remain covered for some time, and with the water level low for this season of the year most of the (Continued on Page Eight)

The injured were Capt. Francis Williams of Detroit and Capt. Herbert L. Corke of Waukegan, Ill., both of whom were in serious condition.

Moscow Claims Major Break Through With Tanks Leading Way; Communications Hit

MOSCOW, April 10 — A heavy Russian attack, supported by tanks, was reported today to have pierced German defense lines on the Southern Front.

After the tanks had broken through the Nazi lines Russian infantry followed, fanning out and attacking the enemy's communications.

The Germans heavily counter-attacked throughout the day trying to close the gap, but the Russians completely broke up the enemy actions and by nightfall had cleared the battlefield of the foe, the report said.

New Russian victories on the Northwest Front were also reported. A surprise attack on the Kalinin sector by two Nazi divisions were smashed and a German attempt to reinforce the trapped 16th army at Staraya Russa, was frustrated.

4,470 Deaths Claimed

The Russian high command said 4,470 Germans had been killed in unsuccessful counter-attacks on the Northwest front a few days ago. "No substantial changes" took place during the night anywhere on the front, it was added.

A Red army communique said 900 Germans had been killed on one sector of the Kalinin Front where the Nazis were forced to retreat after throwing in two divisions in an effort to pierce the Soviet lines.

The surprise German attack, supported by tanks and aircraft, set off one of the fiercest battles ever to take place in that sector, it was said. The Germans withdrew after suffering heavy losses.

A number of prisoners was taken and much booty captured.

Ten German planes were said to have been destroyed and 11 others damaged in a Russian raid on a Nazi airbase.

Russian military men said the Nazis were carrying out "active defense" operations on many sectors of the Kalinin Front but nowhere were successful.

MacARTHUR'S REACTION TO DEFEAT ON BATAAN IS TRIBUTE TO FIGHTERS

MELBOURNE, April 10 — A stirring tribute to the lost Army of Bataan was paid today by the man who created and trained it—General Douglas MacArthur.

This is what he said: "The Bataan force went out as it would have wished—fighting to the end of its flickering, forlorn hope.

"No Army ever has done so much with so little.

"Nothing became it more than its last hour of trial and agony.

"To weeping mothers I can only say that the sacrifice and the halo of Jesus of Nazareth have descended on their sons. God will take them unto himself."

Big Guns Silenced To Keep From Hitting Trapped Soldiers On Bataan

FIGHT BELIEVED ENDED

Wainwright Indicates Troops Have Been Captured Or Killed By Japs

WASHINGTON, April 10—Reporting that "our flag still flies" over Corregidor, Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright today ordered the guns of the powerful last-ditch fortress not to reply to the constant enemy bombardment for fear of hitting the 36,853 American-Filipino troops trapped on nearby Bataan peninsula.

Stressing the fact that all communications between Corregidor and Bataan had been cut off for nearly 24 hours, Wainwright sent a message to President Roosevelt saying "it is apparent that fighting on the peninsula has ceased," indicating that the trapped defenders have been either killed or captured.

Resumption of aerial bombardment of Corregidor by the Japanese after a five-day lull left no doubt that the Nipponese expect to continue in an effort to crush the last islands of resistance in the Manila area.

Japs Landing On Cebu

Meanwhile, Wainwright's torpedo boats sunk a Japanese cruiser near the central Philippine island of Cebu on which invading forces were reported to be landing for the first time.

Mention of the fact that Japanese artillery were shelling Corregidor from Bataan left little doubt that the Japanese now control the lower end of the peninsula which the valiant American-Filipino army held against superior forces until they were weakened by lack of food, disease and three months of almost ceaseless fighting.

"Corregidor was raided frequently throughout April 9 by heavy Japanese bombers," the communique said.

"Enemy batteries in Bataan and on the south shore of Manila bay repeatedly shelled our island forts. No material damage resulted."

"Our guns did not return the fire of the enemy artillery in Bataan, because the exact position (Continued on Page Eight)

F. D. CONSIDERS REGISTRATION OF WOMEN OF U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 10—President Roosevelt today announced that the government is seriously considering voluntary registration for all American women between the ages of 18 and 65.

The President said he had discussed the possibility of having voluntary registration of women take place during the enrollment of men over 45 on April 26-27. However, it had been found that the mechanics of having women register at the same time would be too difficult.

The chief executive said that a decision on the question of registering women might be reached within a week or so.

He added that one of the difficulties involved in the registration of America's womanhood would be the number of women who would come forward to enroll.

If the voluntary registration of American women is definitely decided on, the President said, a date will be set for enrollment sometime after April 26-27.

LEADER OF U. S. MEN ON BATAAN FORESAW LOSS

General Wainwright Aware Of Hopelessness When He Assumed Post

PLEDGED TO FIGHT ON

Stimson Points To Chapter In American History; Big Jap Toll Taken

WASHINGTON, April 10—Disclosure that the valiant American-Filipino defenders of Bataan went on short rations as early as January 11 indicated today that Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright was fully aware of the hopelessness of the situation when he took command from Gen. Douglas MacArthur in mid-March.

But he never wavered, and official reports on the final phase of the Bataan conflict showed that his men followed him unflinchingly until they finally were overwhelmed by fresh and numerically superior Japanese forces.

During the 16 days of almost continuous fighting that preceded the Japanese breakthrough, Wainwright's troops took a terrific toll of the invaders, although the defenders were exhausted. Shortly after MacArthur was transferred to Australia as supreme commander of the United Nations forces in the southwest Pacific, Wainwright and his men pledged they would continue to fight, and they did.

This is amazing in the light of Secretary of War Stimson's statement that the Bataan defenders were "exhausted by insufficient rations and the disease prevalent in that peninsula."

Cited As An Epic It was only natural, therefore, that Stimson said that "we have nothing but praise and admiration for the commanders and the men who have conducted this epic chapter in American history."

A native of Walla Walla, Wash., Wainwright at 59 has had a long and distinguished career in the United States Army since his graduation from West Point in 1906. He served in the Philippines early in his military career, in France during World War I and joined MacArthur in Manila in 1940.

Wainwright received the Distinguished Service Cross from MacArthur February 7 for the important part his troops played in holding the Japanese at bay long enough to permit the American forces to withdraw to Bataan following the fall of Manila.

Support For McSweeney Grows Throughout Ohio

CLEVELAND, April 10—While John McSweeney, Wooster, ranged the state today in an ear-to-ground survey of his chances of being nominated for governor, a behind-the-scenes battle was brewing as candidates sought the endorsement of the powerful Cuyahoga county Democratic organization.

Thus far McSweeney has made no declaration of candidacy but with Democratic National Committeeman Charles Sawyer disavowing gubernatorial ambitions this year, most observers expect the former congressman and state welfare director to toss his hat into the ring soon.

Because Cuyahoga is the largest county, support of its party organization is coveted by all candidates. Already County Commissioner James A. Reynolds has started a movement to swing that support to McSweeney, pictured as a likely recipient because of the showing he made against Harold Burton in 1940.

In the U. S. senatorial contest that year, Burton, a Republican, lost his home county, Cuyahoga, to McSweeney, but won the election on downstate strength.

Ray Miller Silent However, Former Mayor Ray T. Miller, head of the county Democratic organization, does not believe the time has arrived for an open endorsement of any gubernatorial aspirant in the primary, and officially he is maintaining silence.

Those close to the organization say that State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson's chances of aid from that quarter in the primary wilted when his state examiners criticized the Cuyahoga county election board for spending money realized from the sale of old ballots for waste paper.

There was no definite indication of how much support the candidacy of Clarence H. Knisley, Bainbridge, a member of the State Industrial commission, would receive from organization leaders in the largest county.

Frank A. Dye, Columbus lawyer, and Charles Hubbell, Cleveland attorney, are seeking the nomination, but observers consider Ferguson, Knisley and McSweeney, if he runs, as the candidate likely to make the strong est races.

Shelving his own gubernatorial ambitions in the belief that the Democrats can win in November only if they unite behind the aspirant with the best chances of winning, Probate Judge J. H. Lamneck of Tuscarawas county, called on the other candidates to withdraw in favor of McSweeney.

But both Ferguson and Knisley, each believing that he can win, made it plain that they would stay in the contest to the end. Nor have the other candidates indicated that they would follow Lamneck's advice.

McSweeney's friends claim heavy support for his candidacy among the Cleveland nationality groups, voters of Slovenian, Hungarian and Rumanian extraction who cast an important block of ballots.

Bob Garred, news reporter, expects a Civil Air Patrol assignment to send him aloft on Southern California coast patrol any day now.

Russ Young dropped to deep bass last week for his announcements in "Bachelor's Children," network serial. He returned from a two weeks vacation with a throaty reminder of days spent fighting a laryngitis attack.

LEGION, ROTARY TO SEND YOUTHS TO BOYS' STATE

Two Circleville Juniors To Attend Annual Project Of State Veterans

OHIO WESLEYAN SCENE

School Officials To Help Committee Choose Pair For Trip

Howard Hall Post, of the American Legion and the Circleville Rotary club each will send a boy to the seventh Buckeye Boys' State.

Rotary directors decided to sponsor a boy at a meeting Thursday afternoon. The Legion previously had agreed on such a program.

Karl J. Hermann, chairman of the committee which will select the boys, said he would confer with school officials and that probably it would be some time before the selections were made.

Delegates to Boys' State must be recommended or endorsed by their high school principals or other faculty advisers, certifying that they possess the qualities of scholarship, leadership, sportsmanship and courage for service. The purpose is to select boys who are potential future leaders of city, state and nation and who will most likely carry the lessons of the Boys' State effectively to many other boys in their home communities who do not have the privilege of attendance.

Grades Considered

A boy attending the camp must have an average grade for his high school work of "C" or above and must have demonstrated during his high school attendance, a preference for civics, public speaking or debate. He should be qualified as a leader and organizer of school groups. Also he must be a junior in high school.

Buckeye Boys' State will be held in June on the Ohio Wesleyan university campus at Delaware. Previously it had been held at the state fairgrounds, Columbus, but the Army Air Corps is taking that over. Decision to hold the school despite the war, and to accept an invitation from Ohio Wesleyan to use its campus facilities was made by the executive committee of Buckeye Boys' State Inc. Dates for the school originally were set for June 20 to 30, but officials say they may be moved closer to the end of the school year.

A.A.A. CHIEF TO CALL IN AIDES FOR WHEAT TALK

John G. Boggs, Pickaway county AAA chairman, will call in all AAA community committeemen April 23 to discuss plans for conducting the wheat referendum vote in the county on May 2.

Although no definite outline has been adopted for conducting the vote, farmers are expected to vote in their own precincts as they do in a political election.

Chairman Boggs pointed to the mounting surplus of wheat as a strong indication that local farmers should cast their ballots for the marketing quotas. Pickaway county's acreage allotment on wheat is 50,823 acres, which over a ten year period will average 18 bushels to the acre, Mr. Boggs declared. This means that in 1942 Pickaway county farms will produce under normal harvesting conditions about 914,814 bushels of wheat.

The problem of finding storage space for the surplus will be even greater than it was last year, the AAA chairman believes.

COUNCIL IN HILLSBORO BALKS PARKING METERS

HILLSBORO, April 10—Council has blocked any possibility that parking meters will be installed here during the next few months when members rejected all bids submitted this week. Rejection of the bids followed a lengthy report against them by the Business Men's Association.

The Mission of the Seventy

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 12 is St. Luke 10:1-24. The Golden Text being Luke 10:2, "The harvest indeed is plentiful, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest.")

THE TIME in which this lesson took place was December A. D. 29. The place was Perea. St. Luke tells us that the Master appointed 70 men to carry the gospel to various towns and villages where He Himself would later come. The time was growing short, the Lord knew, and He must quickly tell as many as possible about His gospel, and give them His message. St. Luke is the only one to tell us about this.

These 70 men were to go forth two and two, for company. They were sent "as lambs among wolves," Jesus told them. That is, they were innocent and filled with the message they had to tell, but probably had no idea how many people would be angry at their "message," as we would call it today, in hearing such an important message from these simple, ignorant, ill clothed persons, as they doubtless were.

They were to "carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes; and salute no man by the way." This latter did not mean that they were to be uncivil, but the custom of the country was to stop, salute each other, and to chat about this and that, and the 70 had no time for that. They must work quickly to get the message delivered before their Lord came.

Peace Be to This House

They were to go to a private house, and when it was opened to them, they were to give the Jewish salutation, "Peace be to this house." If the man of the house was at home and was hospitable, they should rest in that home, "eating and drinking such things as they give; for the laborer is worthy of his hire." Meaning that they earned the hospitality by their words and deeds, for they were to "heal the sick therein, and say unto them, The Kingdom of God is come nigh unto you."

If they were not received cordially, however, the disciples were to shake the dust of that place from their feet, but they were to be sure also to say that "the kingdom of God is come nigh unto you." And "we unto those cities," Jesus told them. Tyre and Sodom were considered wicked cities and punished for their sins, but "it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sodom at the judgment, than for you," said Jesus.

"He that heareth you, heareth Me," the Master told these men, "and he that despiseth you despiseth Me; and he that despiseth Me despiseth Him that sent Me."

The 70 went their way and after a time came back, meeting Jesus at an appointed place, it is supposed. They were joyful, for, said they, "Lord, even the devils are subject to us through Thy name." And Jesus answered, "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven." We surmise that his meaning was that He saw the evil giving way to good, and the work of the evil one doomed.

Nothing Should Hurt Them

"Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you." Faith would keep them safe, but they should not rejoice about that, but be glad "because your names are written in heaven," the Master said.

"In that hour Jesus rejoiced in spirit, and said, I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and earth, that Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes; even so, Father, for so it seemed good in Thy sight."

"And He turned Him unto His disciples, and said privately, Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see."

"For I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them."

Princes, kings, wealthy, learned and good people, would doubtless have given everything they had to have been with Jesus while He was on earth, to have heard His message from His own lips, and to have done the work these 70 chosen men were appointed to do. They were not rich or well educated, but they were honest, simple folk who understood their Lord and were willing to risk all to do His bidding.

Many Farm Experiments Being Made In Pickaway

This year's growing season will see many agricultural experiments being conducted in Pickaway county, which if successful, may bring the adoption of new crops and new farming methods by local farmers.

County Agricultural Agent F. K. Blair and many local farmers are cooperating in developing experiment plots and new farming techniques.

A test plot of new disease resistant alfalfa was planted this week on the farm of Stanley Glick in Circleville township. It is hoped that the new strain, A-136, will solve the problem of bacterial wilt in alfalfa for local farmers. Bacterial wilt, which develops in the roots of the alfalfa plants, has caused considerable damage in several townships of the county. The disease makes the leaves a pale green and develops most rapidly and seriously on wet, poorly drained soil types. The bacteria enter the roots through injuries, of which the most common is winter freezing. Aside from not cultivating, making the last cutting early and growing alfalfa in mixtures, there is no control for bacterial wilt. A-136 is a blend of five wilt-resistant strains and if it proves satisfactory it will be made available in 1943.

Winter Oats Tested

Winter oats test plots are located in Deercreek, Circleville, Walnut, Pickaway, Salt Creek and Jackson townships. The plots look hardy and have gone through the winter without serious freezing damage, Mr. Blair reported. If winter oats proves successful, it may take the place of spring oats. As a grain it is highly desirable in making livestock rations, the county agent said.

Winter barley plots are located in Jackson and Deercreek townships. Winter barley is not grown extensively in Pickaway county, but as a feed it may be developed further.

The county agent is planning several grass and pasture tests this year, although no definite plan for experiments in this field have yet been worked out.

The erosion control program has been expanded on some of the local farms where strip farming and contour farming are being practiced as experiments. Strip farming may do considerable able to hold hilly soil from washing during heavy rains.

No experiments in new varieties of soybeans are being run in the county this year, although the Ralston Purina company is producing an edible variety for local canning companies on a semi-large scale.

AYRES MAY BE PLACED IN MEDICAL TRAINING

WASHINGTON, April 10—Film Star Lew Ayres, now in a conscientious objectors' camp at Cascade Locks, Ore., will probably be reclassified for noncombatant duty if he passes an Army physical examination, Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey said today.

The draft chief said that selective service officials in California have received Ayres' application for a "1-AO" classification of non-combatant duty.

Most men placed in this classification, Hershey said, are usually assigned to the medical corps. Ayres has contended that his offer to enter the MC was turned down.

TWO CARS COLLIDE AT WASHINGTON, FRANKLIN

Minor property damage to two cars was reported Thursday at 5:25 p. m. when they collided at Washington and Franklin streets.

Traffic Officer Miller Fissell said the left side of the car of John Locklear, 336 East Ohio street, and the front end of the auto of R. H. Swank, 416 Washington street, were damaged. Locklear was traveling east on Franklin street and was struck by the Swank car going south on Washington, Fissell reported.

ASHVILLE

Charles (Chod) Pettibone has purchased from W. A. (Bill) Bowers three lots in East Lawn addition and bordering the Harrison township road. With building restrictions now said to be in force, Mr. Pettibone may not be permitted to complete this year the new home dwelling he had planned to build. Too, Denver Myers, who purchased what is known as the Dolby farm dwelling, a part of the airport plot, is contemplating removing it here on a Jefferson avenue lot for his modern home. Harrison Pennington is now erecting a modern home on a Jefferson avenue lot adjoining the one on which Woodrow Bandy recently built a fine new dwelling. And with the new dwelling, already begun, of Mrs. Beatrice Schiff, it figures up five all told, against none last year. But with restrictions placed on building material, it is not a positive sure guess that these named new dwellings will all be completed this season.

Beginning at 8:30 o'clock, the recreation committee of the Ashville Defense Council will give a benefit card party at the school building this Friday evening. Miss Helen Bowers is chairman. Proceeds from this party will be used to purchase furnishings for the community club room in the Odd Fellows' building. Refreshments served. Prizes given the game winners. Admittance, 25 cents. The Community Club and the Defense Council are cooperating in the plan of providing this community club room.

Both Mrs. A. W. Baker and Mrs. Dan Taylor who have spent the last several weeks with their daughters out of the village are expected home within the next few days. . . . E. A. Snyder, quite sick for the last couple of days at his home on West Main street, is "about the same" as reported this morning. . . . Mrs. John Spindler is confined to her bed by sickness. . . . W. O. Dountz who received a much injured hip in a fall at his home in Scioto township several days ago, is now able to get about some by the use of crutches.

War Savings Stamp sales for the week ending April 3 amounted to $11.55, according to a report from the Business Training class of Ashville high school. This total is the lowest since the first week of the campaign when $10.40 was taken in.

The typing department of the high school is at work on another "order" from the local Red Cross organization, typewriting instructions for the making of men's sweaters.

Frank Hinkle performed very satisfactorily at the County test last week in the Typewriting examination, placing second in the county with a speed of 45 words per minute. Frank, with only five errors in the ten minute test, had the fewest errors of the sixteen contestants. Paul Pettibone was the other entrant from this class and he finished eighth with 34 words per minute.

In the bookkeeping test Helen Irwin finished in third place and Doris Neal placed sixth. Last year Orlan Hines won the bookkeeping event for Ashville, while two years ago Gervase Peters placed first in this subject.

Fly high and strike hard, American EAGLE! Upon you rests the freedom of the human spirit—the spirit of tolerance, the spirit of progress, the spirit that is America.

The enemies of that spirit have lashed out against you and at this very moment are beating upon the gates of your stronghold, clamouring for admittance. These enemies are dangerous. But beware of a greater enemy, American Eagle, the foes within your gates—the "rumor mongers and poison peddlers in our midst." In great raucous roars they bellow their monstrous mouthpieces to all who come within a mile of their voices . . . in muffled undertones they carry their filthy gossip from one ear to another like swarms of buzzing bees.

TO COUNCIL

GENTLEMEN: For the third consecutive year, Circleville has been awarded the National Safety Council citation for having no traffic fatalities within the city limits. Such a citation is quite an honor when one considers that the award this year was given to only 130 cities in Circleville's classification in the United States and only nine cities in Ohio. Since January 1, however, there have been 38 accidents, injuring six persons, the number running considerably higher than for the same period last year. In your present program of cutting appropriations, one of the things you must remember is that you cannot maintain traffic regulations and stop accidents without policemen on the streets, and you can't keep policemen on the streets without funds.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Gen. MacArthur

LET GENERAL MacARTHUR succeed in knocking Japan out of the war, cracking it loose from the Axis and recovering all the loot it has grabbed, and it won't be safe to vote against him for president.

You hear this remark made in Washington every little while now. And you hear another guess apropos the future of the United States.

air, land and sea commander in the western Pacific. If he gets a nerve offensive going against the Japs and finishes them off.

I give priority to his air command, because it's the general assumption that it is his aviation arm he will chiefly rely on to flatten out the home surface of Nippon, demolishing all its industries and cutting off the source of supplies its armies, its navy and its flyers, too, are dependent upon to maintain their campaigns in the various areas they are trying to conquer permanently.

The second guess I refer to has to do with the agitation in favor of a close look-up of the entire aggregation of the world's English speaking peoples, not only during the rest of the war, but everlasting into into subsequent peace-times. Some of the schemes advocates suggest an alliance. Others propose a federation.

The plan's critics say they don't think it would work, since either the United States or Britain, in their opinion, would have to be the predominant member of the partnership, and they don't believe that either would consent to accept the subordinate role. Yet they might come to terms, some argue. If the right sort of a liaison individual were available, liked and trusted by them equally, to weld them together.

MacArthur the Man

General MacArthur's being nominated for the job.

He's a Yankee and then some. Suppose he turns out to be Australia's savior also. On that basis he'll come pretty close to rating as the savior of the whole British Empire.

Australia's loss would mean to John Bull the loss of New Zealand and India likewise, shortly afterwards of South Africa, and then Herr Hitler's hands would be a lot freer to invade him from Europe on his own eastern Atlantic side.

England unquestionably has neglected Australia thus far. John Bull couldn't help it. He has been too much occupied elsewhere. Nevertheless the Australians have developed considerable soreness. They are correspondingly appreciative of American help and General MacArthur symbolizes it. If he isn't actually "it."

It stands England in hand to be quite as appreciative.

The general's a unifier of all that's British as well as a ferocious warrior against their enemies the Japs.

He is Canada's aid, as well as England's and Scotland's.

When Japan popped up the war, Navy Secretary Frank Knox made a speech in which he referred to the Japs as of relatively small consequence. His dope was that they

I hope that other lodges of our city and county are putting their money to work in the same manner.

TO RALPH MAHAFFEY

SIR: An orchid to you for the splendid showing you made in the recent state scholarship test for seniors of high schools in Circleville and Pickaway county. To rank highest among 39 seniors who took the examination is an honor, and especially is meritorious since girls have been dominating these examinations for a long while. Congratulations go, also, to Dorothy Cook and Lois Madison, Circleville high school seniors, who placed second and third in the competition. Members of the various scholarship teams which competed successfully in the county selection event a week ago are also to be congratulated for their work. I hope that the showing of the boys and girls of the community continues in additional examinations to be conducted at later dates.

TO RURAL SUPERINTENDENTS

SCHOOL OFFICIALS: The community regrets that you have been forced to drop so many activities from your school program. The county music festival, reserve basketball games, softball competitions, oratorical contest, and county track meet, all were events which not only were followed with interest by many people, but which provided pupils who participated a well-rounded education. However, your action indicates that you are looking ahead to the future with a will to do your part in the war effort, even though it does seriously curtail your activity program. These are times when stress must be placed on the essentials in everything. Your action should receive the approval of the general public, which will be looking forward to a return to those events when the war is over.

TO VICTORY BOOK COMMITTEE

MEMBERS: When your campaign for books for the Army, Navy and Marine camp libraries closed April 1 you announced that you would have over 1,000 books available. These books represent only the best, sorted from your entire collection in the city and county. The job of sorting the usable books from those which were not was a task in itself, besides the time and effort required in collecting the books from donors. The schools and the Girl Scouts deserve much credit, and their efforts are largely responsible for the success of the campaign.

Chronic Abdominal Pain Not an Acute Condition

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

PAIN IN the abdomen is one of the commonest of all symptoms and is due to a great variety of causes. Acute abdominal pain is a somewhat different thing than a chronic pain. Acute pain that arrives in the midst of good health demands serious consideration, but was discussed yesterday under the head of the acute abdomen. Today I wish to discuss chronic abdominal pain which is not too severe and which recurs day after day.

To show how varied the causes of this symptom are, I saw a patient not long ago who had a constant dull pain all over his abdomen. There was very little else that he complained of and very little else that could be found on him.

Lead Poisoning

The cause turned out to be lead poisoning which is a fairly rare disease nowadays. It was found that his occupation was the peculiar one of inserting lead linings into caskets.

A distinguished Philadelphia physician once wrote a paper called "The West Indies Dry Gripes" and dry gripes is a very expressive term for the abdominal pain of lead poisoning. It is "dry" because it is not accompanied by a diarrhoea, but by constipation.

Another often unrecognized cause of abdominal pain is a curvature of the spine which causes pressure on the nerves that go out under the skin and are distributed to the abdominal region. The diagnostician, who hearing the symptoms of abdominal pain, confines his attention to the abdomen and does not examine the back, often loses out on these cases.

Commonest Cause

I suppose the commonest cause of abdominal pain, and one which leads to innumerable unnecessary operations is simply emotional imbalance. The person who is chronically dissatisfied with life is known as a "belly acher" and quite often these people actually have a belly ache which they do not realize is due to their dissatisfaction and maladjustment to life.

Of course there are many tangible causes of chronic abdominal pain in the abdomen itself. Peptic ulcer of the stomach or duodenum causes abdominal discomfort, as does gall stones, also gall bladder disease.

The treatment of chronic abdominal pain depends upon the cause, as can readily be seen, and to determine this cause requires a considerable amount of diagnostic skill but in the present day we Morale was due to signify, as well as actual fighting power. Italy's done for. Japan's up to MacArthur.

Made to Order

If MacArthur turns his part of the trick isn't he due to be a character who can effect an English-speaking union that will last for quite a spell?

Mac, as a soldier, isn't due to be mixed up in international politics. He is a super-politician, though, temperamentally.

His Australian interviews have proved that. He isn't one of those secretive militarists. If things are going against him, his program is to say so. In short, what he says is so.

A commander who tells the truth is trustworthy.

The rule ought to hold good all around.

If he ticks the Japs, all hands will know that they are licked. If not, we will know what next we have got to do.

Most generals are of the hush-hush variety.

Doug MacArthur takes the plug entirely out. He holds press conferences, just like the kind we have in Washington, or even more so. That news, from Doug, in Australia, is dependable.

have many aids and means for this diagnosis. Such a patient is usually subjected to a routine examination with the help of all laboratory techniques and consultants.

Methods of Diagnosis

An examination of the blood will immediately disclose the presence of lead poisoning, which solved the case I mentioned above. The X-ray, of course, is a highly important feature of the examination. Examination by stomach specialists, rectal specialists and gynecologists all may be necessary to help unravel an obscure case.

In treatment, too, we are pretty well fixed to handle these cases. The orthopedic surgeon may be called in to treat the spine condition and thus serve as a specialist on the abdomen. One of the curses of our modern situation is the readiness with which these patients are sometimes operated on without careful consideration of exactly what is the matter.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. A. L.: "What causes dizziness when one lies down or when raising the head or turning the head or eyes quickly?"

Answer: Dizziness of this sort is due either to changes in the arteries of the brain or changes in the equilibrium apparatus of the internal ear. It is possibly due to focal infection from bad teeth or tonsils. Your doctor could work out the cause for you.

T. Y.: "Will a young baby boy rupture if he cries too much, or if you let him cry too long?"

Answer: This is a possibility, although a very slight one. If it is possible to stop a baby from crying, it is better to do so.

R. G.: "I am interested to know about reducing diets — whether there is any group of foods that keep the skin firm and fresh when one is on a reducing diet."

Answer: If the reducing diet is well planned, so that it is balanced in the way of vitamins and minerals, the skin will remain in a healthy condition.

T.: "How can a person tell if they have a tapeworm or worms?"

Answer: There are no symptoms from tapeworms or other large intestinal worms. The only way it can be told that one is harboring such parasites is to see parts of the body of the worm in the stool.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by order. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope.

The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diarrhoea," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Invitations were received from Mr. and Mrs. William C. Yeagley of Defiance for the wedding of their daughter, Barbara Eleanor, to Mr. Joseph Wilford Adkins Jr., son of Judge and Mrs. Joseph W. Adkins of East Mound street.

Claude D. Kraft, bookkeeper for the Third National bank for 17 years, resigned to become manager of the Dewey C. Black insurance company. Dick Robinson succeeded Kraft at the bank.

The annual report of Miss Mary Wilder, librarian, disclosed 1931 as the library's record year, the circulation of books having increased 4,132 over the previous year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barnhart of New York City left for Chicago, Ill., after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Barnhart, Montclair avenue.

ANETTE HUNG up the receiver and stood motionless. Well, don't stand there like a bump on a log! The words seemed to ring in the air as if her old grandmother miraculously had appeared beside her. The macabre, and yet strangely comforting sensation made her realize how much she needed advice and friends. Fright ran through her anew, when she was forced to admit that actually she had no friends. None of those frequent visitors, so complimentary over good food and expensive liquor, was a friend.

August Drake? Yes, of course. But where was August? On a year's honeymoon. Where? Anette did not want to confide in any of the servants. With a frenzied rush that cracked her thumbnails, she slid back the doors to a closet and found a coat of summer ermine. She tossed it over the silk crepe lounging pajamas she had been wearing while waiting for Larry. Without much care she put on one of the little mantilla-like head coverings that Carruthers had suggested she continue wearing as dress publicity for the Barrington character, Mona.

As she ran down the stairway, one of her boudoir slippers dropped off but she did not notice it until she was outdoors and her foot touched the cold, wet terrace. Even then she did not stop. Still running, she reached a coupe parked in the driveway. For several seconds she sat fumbling with various instruments on the dashboard without realizing that she had no key. Dry sobs rang in her throat as she ran back into the house, entering by way of the back door, because she had no latchkey and did not want to ring. No one was in the kitchen as she sped through and up to her room again.

Nervously she dialed the Imperial hotel and got Lois Lyndon. In short, panting sentences she explained what had happened. "Come get me, Lois. I'm afraid to drive."

Only five minutes had passed since Ralph Hay's telephone call, yet to Anette those five minutes and the added 10, during which she waited for Lois, seemed interminable. Unable to sit still, she was on her feet constantly, either just standing in one spot, staring at nothing, or walking about, with so little control over her movements that she kept banging into the furniture.

James Lyndon was in the car with his sister. The instant lights flashed in the drive, Anette had run and now was huddled between James and Lois, shoulders drooped, eyes staring at the tirelessly scraping windshield wipers, as they swooped aside the fast pouring rain. Anette was glad they did not talk. She knew she was not thinking very well. Even so, she was thinking well enough to know the silently sympathetic Lyndon and his sister were her best, and practically her only Hollywood friends.

That too-clean smell greeted her the minute they entered the hospital and made her slightly ill. It held an additional horror, taking her back as it did to those last days she had seen her grandmother alive. As she watched James Lyndon move to ask for information, a violent self-irritation took possession of the girl. Why be so morbid? Larry wasn't dead. He wasn't even dying. She must not be so silly. Facial cuts were the worst about the accident. And wait would be able to fix those. She knew he could. Plastic surgeons did wonderful things nowadays. She must be brave. She straightened; nevertheless, she was immensely grateful for James Lyndon's strongly supporting arm beneath hers. Ralph Hay met them outside Larry's room. To Anette he said, "Hi, kid," as if addressing her at a cocktail party, murmured more sedately to Lois and her brother, then took Anette's arm and led her down the hall.

She protested, "I thought that was Larry's room back there." "Yes," Hay said. He gave her a long look, then reached out and braced her upper arms in his strong stubby hands. "You're always taking it on the chin, kid, so you may as well take this the same way. Larry doesn't want to see you."

Instead of tottering or weeping, the girl seemed suddenly to possess a magnificent control. Ralph Hay felt her shoulders grow rigid in his hold, as anger came to her rescue.

"Isn't Larry a little mixed up? If one of us has the right to refuse to see the other, it is I!" With furiously rough gestures she wiped drops of rain from her face. No tears. Just rain. "No time that he has disappointed or deceived me compares with this. This is the worst." Her lips straightened and the topaz eyes were almost hidden beneath her straight, heavy lashes.

Lois scarcely dared speak to her when she rejoined them. The grinding, set expression on Anette's tanned face was frightening. Finally, Lois whispered, "Is something wrong?"

"Larry doesn't want to see me." Anette made the statement as if she were quoting words.

The Lyndon girl motioned her brother to take Anette down to the car, then turned to the press agent. "What goes on?"

The man looked exceedingly grave. "Unfortunately, Larry was not knocked out. He got a good look at his face, which is a mess. So he has been pretty hard to handle. He is brooding over the scandal and, of course, over the condition of Sandra Owens."

The blonde girl's face was pale and her features bore an expression kindred to Hay's. "But why tell that poor girl he doesn't want to see her?"

"It's true. Don't ask me why." The man frowned. "It may be that he doesn't want Anette to see her, not that he doesn't want to see her. All I know—the voice of the dapper, blasé newspaperman was hoarse—"all I know is he said for me to keep her out."

Each day Anette tried to see her husband. She called at the hospital, telephoned, wrote beseeching letters, all in vain. No one helped her. The doctors did not want their patient disturbed. Ralph Hay was unyieldingly loyal to Larry's wishes. Worse still, he told her so little, and invariably it was covered with cleverly chosen subterfuge.

"Stick to your work, my little pigeon. I hear you're going to be a swell Mona. Be patient. The Egyptian mummy probably will see you some day." Egyptian mummy? It sounded horrible.

Not even his studio would help her. They were angry twice with Laurence Peyton. The flop, he had been in his last picture. And now this scandal.

"Nothing but trouble. He's no good without Drake. The two main executives told her the same thing."

She braved their critical anger and said, "That's not true and you know it. Any good leading lady, teamed with Peyton, could make a good picture."

With gesticulations of fat, well-kept hands, they told her, "It wouldn't matter how good a picture Peyton made. We couldn't sell the public's event. It may not seem so awful to you, Mrs. Peyton, but your husband has been in a scandal and his career is over until the scandal dies down. If Sandra goes through with her threatened lawsuit, things will be worse. Maybe in a year or so, Larry can make a comeback—"Dolefully they predicted, "Maybe, never. It happens that way sometimes."

Enraged over what she considered base treachery, she left them and went to plead with Carruthers. He denied her with words that cut. "You're insane, child! I had been considering Larry, but not now. Steven is too upright and honorable. Not now, Anette. Not after what has happened."

That night she related the entire interview to Lois Lyndon. "That's gratitude for you." The girl touched her lips to her first after-dinner Scotch and soda, then said, "Carruthers is so chippy from Larry's first two pictures they should get down on their knees to him instead of kicking him around like an old shoe. But the picture business for you. There hasn't been anything in the papers about snake-in-the-grass Sandra's lawsuit for several issues, so perhaps they did kick through with that on the Q. T. but, heck, they can afford it out of the Drake-Peyton profits, Anette." She said abruptly, "Why do you let them keep you out of the hospital?"

Her hostess was walking back and forth in front of a flaming fireplace. "I don't let them keep me out. Why I feel strong enough to beat together the heads of nurses and doctors and storm the place, but if Larry doesn't want to see me, I'd die before I'd force myself on him." A heavy sigh shook through her. "And sometimes I feel as if I were going to."

"You're lucky to be busy," Lois said. "I suppose so." The dark-haired girl plunged into an easy chair. The plumed skirt of her gleaming lame evening gown fell in folds about her feet and upon the floor. "But there hasn't been a single word from Larry. Every time a messenger walked onto the set or up to my front door I've thought, 'This is it!' The same with the telephone. But here it is New Year's Eve, and I'm alone." She began to pace again. "Surrounded by luxury, moving into a new house, even more luxurious—I'm successful. I have everything." Her fingers were clenched about her diamond necklace. "And yet, if ever a person was kicked out into the cold, I'm that person."

Lois repeated a previous invitation. "Please, let's have Jimmy take us somewhere to celebrate."

Anette shook her head. "I'd gladly forgive Larry for Sandra if he would just let me see him." "It's like Hay says," Lois stated casually. "It's more that Larry doesn't want you to see him." Catching sight of the dumbfounded look on her hostess' face, the blonde girl continued, "I told you that the first night. You didn't even answer me."

"I guess I didn't hear you. I was so dazed. But, Lois, that makes it so different. I could help him. I wouldn't mind the scars—they can be fixed. I'd encourage him. Let's go right over."

The telephone rang through her words. She snatched the receiver. Tanned, jeweled fingers trembled, then grew still. Her answers were crisp-toned courtesies. At the end of the conversation she dampened her lips and said to Lois Lyndon, "Call Jimmy. I think a New Year's celebration is just what I need." She dampened her lips a second time. "Larry has left the hospital. He's not discharged. He just walked out—they don't know where he is." (To Be Continued)

Alsab, with Jockey Vedder up

Here is Alsab, the two-year-old champion of 1941 and still one of the biggest threats for the Kentucky Derby at Louisville, May 2. Owned by Albert B. Sabath of Chicago, an attorney, who purchased the horse for $700. Alsab won in excess of $110,000 last year but has failed to win a race in three tries in Florida this year. His best effort was in the Widener, when he ran a close fourth to some of the older and best horses running on American tracks today.

Smith, Runyan Set Pace In Master's Golf Test

By LAWTON CARVER

NATIONAL GOLF CLUB, Augusta, Ga., April 10—Some one among 14 specific, duly identified individuals probably will win the Masters golf championship and he may, as predicted, set a new record for the event, but picking out the one most likely to accomplish these feats was scarcely less easy today than yesterday when they fired the opening shots.

As they started the second round this afternoon it was a battle against par and a rain-drenched course, a battle for the crown worn by Open Champion Craig Wood who was among those who landed in the middle of it all for today's resumption with an even par 72 yesterday, or five strokes behind the opening day leaders, Horton Smith and Paul Runyan with a pair of 67s, five under par.

On a fast course, 13 went around in par or better and Ben Hogan, pre-tournament favorite, slipped one over with a 73.

They had to tussle with a stiff wind that fairly howled through the trees. Then came the rain as the last stragglers were finishing and it beat down unrelentingly to leave a new problem for them to encounter on the second round, which probably will tell the story as to whether any one of them will beat the record 279 scored by Ralph Guldahl in 1939.

Many Already Out

Most of the starting field of 42 already seemed hopelessly out of it, but some of the poorer scorers still could bounce back between now and Sunday when the $5,000 purse will be cut up.

Among those who provided one of yesterday's most distinctive highlights was Bobby Jones himself who was paired with Craig Wood. Twelve years after Jones retired with his grand slam he played the current open champion even with a 72 to stay among the leaders in his own tournament.

And the old master and current master gave the gallery some thrills too, the former with beautifully steady golf sometimes reminiscent of his salad days.

Wood, of course, was good as he has to be to hold down his position as the only man ever to win the Open and the Masters in the same year—which was last year.

Runyan, shortest hitter in the field and a mite of a fellow, shot a 33-34 for his 67 against a par of 36-36—72, while Smith did it the other way—34 and 33 in, as he began pursuit of his third Masters crown. Runyan has never won this one but twice held the National Professional title, among others.

The teams started out with a heavy barrage of ten-pins falling into the pits and then they cooled off. The first such casualty was the Bradley Barbecue outfit of Indianapolis which splashed a nice 1,085 game—second high of the tournament—and then could mow down but 920 in the middle and wound up with 894 for a 2-899 which led the 72 teams on the evening's schedule.

The other casualty was more complete than that of the Bradleys. This came when the Drenik's Erin Brews of Cleveland tossed 1,019 in the opening try and then floundered around until games of 860 and 865 brought them into 2,744.

Second high team for the night was the Bruck's Beer of Cincinnati on 2,885 while the Grace Construction Co. of Fort Wayne, featuring Everett Scott, former Yankee shortstop with 568, came up with 2,880. The Grace team plastered the sticks for 1,039 in the middle.

Appearance of the Faber Cement Blocks of New Jersey with their 3,515 in league play standing as the nation's best this year; the Brunswick Mineralites of Chicago with Harry Steers and Joe Fliger; and of Nelson Burton with the St. Louis Budweiser team, are scheduled Saturday night. Each of these teams carries an average of better than 1,000.

CLEVELAND, April 10—The football teams of Notre Dame and Georgia Tech will meet at Cleveland stadium October 3—if Notre Dame officials agree to shift the game from South Bend, Herb Buckman, manager of the Cleveland stadium, said today. Georgia Tech has consented to the game here.

BROOKLYN AND YANKEES MEET ON BUMS' FIELD

NEW YORK, April 10—Brooklyn fans will get a chance to cast a pre-season, speculative eye on their beloved Bums today when the Dodgers square off against the world champion Yankees at Ebbets field in the first of a three-game series before the home folk.

Beaten four games out of five by the haughty Yanks in the world series last fall the Dodgers are heading into the pennant race that opens Tuesday with an outfit considered by many experts to be stronger than last year's pennant winners.

They will be weakened for the exhibition series with the Yankees, however, by the absence of Dolph Camilli, slugging first baseman, and Billy Herman, wheelhorse veteran second sacker. Manager Leo Durocher said today that Camilli's toxic condition is practically gone but he didn't want to hurry the fence buster into action.

Herman is suffering from a lumbago-like affliction which is in no way connected with the injury he received in last year's world series.

Whitlow Wyatt, hero of the Dodgers' stretch drive with the Cardinals last fall, is expected to start against the Yankees today with Ernie Bonham flinging for the champs.

Weather Break Needed

ASHLAND, Ky., April 10—The Cincinnati Reds hoped for a break from the weatherman today as they arrived in Ashland for their third-last game of the spring training season. The Boston Red Sox-Cincinnati game scheduled at Charleston, W. Va., was the second straight cancelled because of weather.

Indians Vs. Giants

CLEVELAND, April 10—The Cleveland Indians roll into Cleveland today hoping that weather, which cancelled their games with the New York Giants in four cities, would clear long enough for workouts at League park. The New Yorkers and the Tribe tangled tomorrow in their tenth game of the barnstorming trip and wind up the tour on Sunday. Al Smith will pitch against the great Carl Hubbell in Saturday's game and Mel Harder will be on the mound Sunday.

Pytlak May Enter Navy

CLEVELAND, April 10—Frankie Pytlak, first-string Boston Red Sox catcher, is enroute to his home in Buffalo today, preparing to join Uncle Sam's forces. He was classified 1-A by his Cleveland selective service board and said goodbye to his Bosox buddies last night. Pytlak, 32-year-old veteran who has spent 13 years in professional baseball, said he will apply for enlistment at Great Lakes naval training station next week. He hopes to become a physical instructor.

SURPRISE RACE BOOSTS STOCK OF DEVIL DIVER

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 10—Devil Diver's stock as a Kentucky Derby prospect rose considerably today as a result of his surprise victory over Warren Wright's Whirlaway, 1941 turf champion, in the $2,500 added Phoenix handicap at Keeneland yesterday.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro rode the Greentree farm's colt to victory on a muddy track. Whirlaway got off last and trailed until the stretch, but passed Sun Again, his stablemate and also a derby hopeful, and was pressing at the finish.

It was Whirlaway's first race as a four-year-old. He was ridden by Art Craig.

PEABODY CALLED UP
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 10—Endicott (Chub) Peabody, all-American guard on the 1941 Harvard university football team, today hoped to join the submarine branch of the Navy after he graduates in June. "Chub," a member of the Naval ROTC unit at Harvard, has only to pass the physical examination before receiving his commission.

Cardinals last fall, is expected to start against the Yankees today with Ernie Bonham flinging for the champs.

Draft Office Draws Plans For Fourth Registration

Three Day Session To Be Held April 25, 26, 27 For Older Men

Complete plans for Pickaway county's fourth registration, to include men between the ages of 45 and 64, were announced Friday by the draft board.

The registration will be held April 25, 26 and 27 in the common pleas court room of the court house, and it will follow the general procedure used during the February registration.

Saturday, April 25, the registration will be conducted from 12 noon to 6 p. m. and Sunday, April 26, during the same hours. Monday, April 27, the registration hours will be from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Men with last names starting from A through F are asked to register Saturday; those whose last names start with the letters G through Q on Sunday and those whose last names begin with the letters R through Z on Monday.

Persons who served during the last registration will serve again. More than thirty volunteer registrars assisted with the February registration.

According to reports from Col. C. W. Goble, state draft director, it is estimated that approximately 50 percent more men than registered in the February draft will sign up. February's registration in Pickaway county totaled 1,330.

priests and clergymen of the Norwegian church resigned from office. The Quisling government immediately announced that laymen appointed by him would take over their duties and would even be qualified to perform marriage and baptismal ceremonies without theological education. Quisling's church department sent telegrams to the 1,100 clergymen in Norway, giving them until tomorrow to resume their duties under pain of permanent dismissal.

The head of the church department, M. Feyling, told the press in Oslo that resignation of the clergymen was directed not only against the national government of Norway, but against German interests "and will be dealt with according to war's hard laws."

of our troops in that area was not known and it was desired to avoid the chance of subjecting them to our own fire."

Silence Explained

This explained dramatically why the guns of Corregidor remained silent during the last 24 hours since Wainwright informed his superiors that the defenses on Bataan apparently have been overcome.

The overwhelming air and artillery superiority of the Japanese finally overcame the dogged resistance of the hungry and exhausted defenders," the communiqué said.

Refuting axis claims that Wainwright has asked for an armistice, the War department quoted the general as declaring that "our flag still flies on the beleaguered fortress of Corregidor."

Wainwright's message was directed to President Roosevelt personally and thanked the President for the confidence he had placed in the man who is now directing the fight from Corregidor.

Mr. Roosevelt, at his press conference this morning confirmed receipt of the message. Asked whether he had any comment on the situation in the Philippines, the President replied that he did not think so except that everybody feels pretty badly about Bataan.

He described the message from Gen. Wainwright as a very grand one, and he quoted the passage in which the general said "our flag on this beleaguered island fortress still flies."

HERMES STRUCK BY JAP TORPEDO SHOT FROM AIR

London Shocked By News Day After Announcement Of Cruiser Sinkings

whether the British high command has yet grasped importance of the air arm in naval warfare.

The admiralty announcement on the sinking of the Hermes, which carried a normal complement of 664 officers and men, said it was believed all personnel were saved since the carrier went down only 10 miles off Ceylon.

An official denial was issued at the same time to Japanese claims that their forces in the same engagement had sunk a cruiser of the Birmingham class and another of the Emerald class.

(Tokyo asserted in addition that a third cruiser, one of the Leander class, had been damaged seriously and that a destroyer, patrol vessel and six other ships were destroyed. The Japanese included a claim that 46 United Nations planes had been shot down and six others set afire on the ground in engagements at Ceylon.)

It was believed in many quarters in London that this latest blow to Britain's navy will add considerable fuel to demands for a full airing of the British naval policy in the light of recent experiences at the hands of the Japanese air force.

Six At Start Of War

Britain had six aircraft carriers at the outbreak of war and others have been built since while still more are under construction.

The axis vessels sunk in the Mediterranean included a large supply vessel, one medium sized supply vessel and two schooners.

Today's admiralty announcements followed statements yesterday revealing that a 10,000-ton Italian cruiser had been torpedoed and sunk in the Mediterranean.

One of the four enemy vessels sunk in the latest aggressive British submarine action was a large supply ship, undoubtedly attempting to run materiel to axis desert forces under command of German General Erwin Rommel in Libya.

Another supply vessel of medium size was sent to the bottom along with two schooners.

The Hermes came out of retirement at the beginning of the war with Germany. She had many narrow escapes during encounters in the Mediterranean.

The vessel had an adventurous pre-war career when it operated from a station in China.

Saved Lindberghs

Included among its many feats was the rescue of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh when the plane in which they were flying crashed in the Yangtze river in 1931. The Hermes took the couple and their damaged plane to Shanghai.

The aircraft carrier also was instrumental in rescuing 70 British and American school children when Chinese pirates in 1935 seized the steamer Tungchow on which they were traveling.

rain standing on fields will soak into the ground within a short time.

Most pea crops have been planted sufficiently long to have sprouted, and therefore unless the wet weather continues the peas will not rot since they already have sprouted. The rain will help Spring pastures and meadows, which take a large amount of moisture during the growing season.

Service department officials said that sewers were in good condition and were carrying away the excess water although some residences were reported to have water in the basements.

PARAMARIBO, Dutch Guiana

—Fifteen members of the crew of an American tanker torpedoed by a German u-boat were picked up by the yacht of Gov. Johannes C. Kielstra of this colony, after drifting for a week in an open lifeboat, it was disclosed today.

This dispatch was sent from an enemy country, whose motive in releasing news is likely to be propaganda. Axis claims should be credited only when confirmed by American or Allied sources.

ROME—(By Official Italian Wireless)—Military premises on the island of Malta have been "devastated" by axis air attacks, the Italian high command claimed today. Successes in Libya also were reported.

ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE IS NAMED IN $1,608,480 SUIT

A discharged lineman for the South Central Rural Electric Cooperative Inc., has filed a $1,608,480 damage suit in the Fairfield county common pleas court against his former employer, the largest amount for damages ever sought in Fairfield county.

Bringing the action is Henry Edward Clagg, 19, of Lancaster, who charges in his petition that "all the actions and conduct of the defendant were malicious and willful and that employees, (50 in number) are entitled to damages in the amount of $300,000." The larger figure was reached when Clagg alleged the "plaintiff is entitled to two fold damages."

Clagg was dismissed from his job on March 13 by Darwin Kinder, co-operative manager, following his arrest by Lancaster police on a charge of resisting arrest.

ALLIES STEP UP AIR OFFENSIVE AGAINST JAPS

By International News Service

United Nations fliers, led principally by United States pilots at the controls of American flying fortress bombers, definitely have taken the offensive against Japan.

This was disclosed today in Melbourne, Australia, by Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett, American commander of all air forces in the southern continent, who declared: "We have taken the offensive against the Japanese in the air and will continue to increase it."

As Lieut. Gen. Brett disclosed that United Nations fliers were on the offensive against the Japanese in the air above Australia, Air Minister Arthur Drakeford announced that Australian and American pilots had destroyed or damaged 126 enemy craft in the month ended April 8.

Drakeford remained cautious, however, and warned that there had been little abatement in Japanese air activity around Australia. He contended that United Nations air operations still are far short of what it required to eliminate the Japs from bases they have won.

Prime Minister John Curtin also added the warning that "today's war news is bad and it urgently manifests the United Nations' formidable task."
